line of Valentines before adv. to the law which requires 1935 registration plates to be carried on all motor vehicles operating on the highway on and after March 1, 1935.

Mr. Barrows also calls attention to the law which requires 1935 registration plates to be carried on all motor vehicles operating on the highway on and after March 1, 1935.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Jan. 30, a surprise party was given to Mrs. Percy Brinck by her three daughters: Mrs. Henry Godwin, Mrs. Arthur Dudley, and Miss Kathryn Brinck, assisted by Miss Erma Marshall.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent with musical games, beano, and bridge. Mrs. Brinck was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Delicious refreshments of sherbet and angel cake were served. The birthday cake, which was made by the eldest daughter, Mrs. Henry Godwin, was very prettily decorated.

The birthday greetings were written by Mrs. Viola Lord as follows:

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS
It's nice to say "Good Morning,"
It's fine to say "Hello,"
But how about "Happy Birthday?"
From all these friends you know

We know these yearly events
You probably try to spurn,
But after all it's grand to know
Each friend must take her turn.

Day fades away, then comes the night,
Always each year begins and ends;
May bright, happy ones be in store
For you

Is the wish of loving daughters
And loyal friends.

At five o'clock the jolly group,
consisting of 20 ladies, departed, wishing the guest of honor "many happy returns of the day."

CALVIN T. FOX

Calvin T. Fox passed away at the hospital at Togus last Thursday, Jan. 24, after a long period of ill health. He had been at the Soldiers' Home there since last May.

Mr. Fox was born in Eddington, April 15, 1864, the son of David A. and Eva (Rowe) Fox. He attended Gould Academy, and at the age of 19 enlisted at Augusta as a member of the Ordnance Detachment, regular army, and served two years and a half. He followed a variety of occupations and for 14 summers was in the lookout station on Aziscoos Mountain. For many years he had spent the winters at Augusta.

He was a member of many fraternal orders and had many friends in town.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Lucy Fox, of Bethel; a daughter, Mrs. May Watson of Hanover, N. H., and several grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Home chapel Saturday morning. The remains were taken to Hallowell to be placed in a vault until spring.

REGISTER CARS NEXT WEEK

Lewis O. Barrows, Secretary of State, has announced that arrangements have been completed for the February temporary registration officers in the county of Oxford for the additional convenience of the general public and will be prepared to issue operator's licenses and number plates at the following places:

Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 4 and 5, Court House, South Paris
Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 6 and 7, Town Hall, Rumford

An inspector with clerks will be on hand to serve the public. This method of licensing operators, registering vehicles and delivering plates was inaugurated a year ago in an earnest endeavor to better serve the citizens of Maine. The experiment at that time proved successful, not only from the standpoint of public service, but also from the standpoint of the Department in August.

It is earnestly requested that wherever convenient an effort be made to take advantage of this service, in order to avoid last minute rushes and subsequent disappointments if everyone waits until the last of February before making application for licenses and number plates.

Mr. Barrows also calls attention to the law which requires 1935 registration plates to be carried on all motor vehicles operating on the highway on and after March 1, 1935.

MAINE HAS LARGEST FISH HATCHERIES

17,000,000 Trout and Salmon Reared in 34 Hatcheries and Stations 10,000,000 Legal Sized

Not satisfied with an annual output of 17,000,000 trout and landlocked salmon, the majority legal-sized or bigger, the State of Maine is building two of the largest hatcheries and rearing stations in the world, George J. Stobie, Fish and Game Commissioner, announced recently.

Commissioner Stobie visited the Maine exhibit at the National Motor Boat show at Grand Central Palace January 21st, and later attended the opening sessions of the American Game Conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Accompanying the Maine commissioner at the game conference were Joseph S. Stickney, supervisor of wardens, and Ross McKenny, noted guide from Lincoln.

The lure of his native woods cut short Stobie's major league baseball career. He pitched for the Boston Red Sox in 1912 after a brilliant diamond record at University of Maine. His contemporaries on the old Red Sox included the immortal trio of Hooper, Spinker and Lewis. As a fish and game commissioner, he has no peer.

The first of Maine's new hatcheries on which construction was started is located at Gray. It will comprise seven miles of pools, each 100 feet long and 25 feet wide, and will have a capacity of 12,000,000 legal sized Eastern or speckled brook trout annually. It is now practically one-third completed. Employed there are 40 men. Out of the wilderness it is just south of the noted Poland Springs Hotel and in all probability is in the same watershed. Natural springs abound at the Gray hatchery location, and it is estimated that 8000 gallons of water a minute gush out of the ground in addition to its natural advantages, this hatchery will be equipped with the most modern facilities.

Maine also will have the world's largest hatchery for raising landlocked salmon, to be known as the Kok-n-o Hatchery and located at an inlet of the famous Moosehead Lake. It will have three miles of pools of the same dimensions as those at Gray, and will have a capacity of 2,000,000 legal-sized salmon annually. As yet no part of this hatchery is in operation. At the present time 260 men are being employed in its construction.

If the new license law, increasing the resident license fee, goes into effect, as expected, Maine will go ahead with plans for even greater development of its hatcheries. All the license fees in Maine are used for fish and game propagation, in addition to $140,000 annually appropriated by the State. Maine had eleven hatcheries with an annual output of approximately 2,000,000 fish in 1928. Expansion resulted in an increase to thirty-four hatcheries and rearing stations in 1934, with a volume of 17,000,000 fish, of which 10,000,000 are legal sized or larger and the remainder fingerlings and fry.

Commissioner Stobie stresses the fact that so many of the fish stocked in Maine waters are legal-sized. The hatcheries could produce 500,000,000 fish, but experience has shown that allowing the fish to get their growth results in better sport for the anglers.

BETHEL MUSICIANS

The Bethel Musicians held their meeting at Mrs. Greenleaf's Jan. 7, with an attendance of 19. Barbara Hall played "Mocking Bird" and Kathleen Wright played "Black Hawk Waltz." The musician studied was Flotow and the opera "Martha." Games were enjoyed. A contest was held to see who could play "Joyous Farmer" with the most expression. Barbara Hall and Maynard Austin won it.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Earl Davis' at 5 o'clock, Monday, Feb. 4.

CHARLES FREDRICK SHAW

The death of Charles Fredrick Shaw occurred at his home on the West Bethel road Sunday, Jan. 27, about 11:45, following a week's illness. He was born Feb. 5, 1849, at Cambridge, Mass., the son of Lewis and Elmira Estabrook Shaw. He spent his boyhood days and received his education in his native city.

When a young man he came to Bethel where he has been a resident for over 60 years, and followed his chosen occupation of farming. He married Miss Lena A. Cross of Bethel and four children were born to them: Miss Mabel Shaw of Portland, Mrs. Edgar B. Hall of Woodsville, N. H., Mrs. Mildred Tyler of West Bethel, and Miss Retta Shaw of Portland.

He is survived by his widow and the four daughters already mentioned, also two sisters, Mrs. Clara J. Whitman and Mrs. Ella Mills, both of Lewiston, besides three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m., from Greenleaf's funeral home, conducted by Rev. P. J. Clifford. Interment at West Bethel.

ALUMNI AND BRIDGTON AT GOULD NEXT WEEK

This week the rapidly improving Gould basketball team will travel to Norway to play the return game with the Norway High quintet. Although the Blue and Gold can hardly hope for victory on the small Norway floor they are going to put up a great battle all the way. The small local team has gained the favor of a large number of fans for the determined fight and aggressiveness they have shown.

Alumni Play Wednesday
Perhaps the biggest crowd of the season will show up next Wednesday when the always popular annual battle occurs between the Alumni and Gould. Gould's sturdy band of graduates always put up a great battle and last year they defeated the school team one of the two games played.

Gould Girls to Play Alumni
The Gould Girls team will add to the Wednesday night attraction in its annual battle with their Alumni. This will be the first appearance of the girls team on the home floor. They played their opening game at Gorham last Tuesday against the High School team of that village.

Bridgton High Here Next Friday
On Friday evening of next week the Bridgton High School team will invade the local campus for the first time since 1930 when they were swamped by Gould's Bates Tourney team, 42 to 7.

U. S. CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER

The United States Civil Service Commission, at the request of the Postmaster General, announces a competitive examination for postmaster in Bethel, Maine.

Receipt of applications is to close February 15, 1935.

Applications must be properly executed on Form 10, and must be on file with the Commission at Washington, D. C., by the close of business on the date indicated above.

This examination is held under the President's order of July 12, 1933, and not under the civil service act and rules.

Apply at the post office in Bethel, Maine, or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., for application Form 10, and Forms 2222 and 2358 showing the places of examination and containing other definite information.

Applicants are warned against paying money or other valuable consideration to anyone in taking an examination or securing an appointment. A person who is found to have given or promised anything of value to anyone for securing his influence or endorsement will not be certified by the Commission as qualified for appointment.

LEADING JUMPERS AT RUMFORD SKI MEET

Three Days of Competition Will See Leading Winter Sportsmen of the East Featured

Governor Louis J. Brann will welcome the nation's leading ski jumpers and cross-country racers to Rumford on February 9, 10, and 11, on the occasion of the U. S. Eastern Amateur Ski Association championship meet, to be run in conjunction with the 12th annual winter carnival of the Chisholm Ski and Outing Club. Originally scheduled for two days, the event has been extended an extra day in order to avoid putting too much strain upon the contestants. Another feature will be the Maine interscholastic championships.

Among the stars already entered is Edward J. Blood, former all-around ace of the University of New Hampshire winter sports team, now representing the Sno Birds of Lake Placid, N. Y. He won the New England jumping title at Rumford year ago.

The Winter Sports Association of Norfolk, Conn., will send the redoubtable Ollie Hegge, Eastern champion last year in both the 36-kilometer and 17-kilometer cross-country skiing events; Birger Torfeson, 1934 Eastern combined titlist; Harold Sorenson, 1933 Eastern jumping title-holder and 1934 New York State champion, and Ivar Hegge, also a jumper.

Torfeson won the New York State Class A ski-jumping championship Sunday, Jan. 20. Blood came in fifth.

Around a score of the leading ski clubs of the East are expected to compete at Rumford, according to Walter G. Hicks, chairman. They include Dartmouth Outing Club, Hanover Ski Club, Nansen Ski Club, Winnepesaukee Ski Club and University of New Hampshire Outing Club, of New Hampshire; Greenfield Outing Club and Norwegian American Ski and Soccer Club, of Massachusetts; Salisbury Outing Club and Norfolk Winter Sports Association, of Connecticut; Bear Mountain Sports Association, Norway Ski Club, Norsemen Ski Club, Swedish Ski Club and Lake Placid Sno Birds, of New York; Brattleboro Outing Club, of Vermont; Chisholm Ski and Outing Club and Auburn Ski Club, of Maine.

ARTHUR HERRICK RECOMMENDED FOR APPOINTMENT

According to a letter received today from Representative Simon Hamlin, Arthur E. Herrick has been recommended for appointment as acting postmaster at Bethel.

A Disson Transfer truck from Berlin, loaded with products of the Cascade mill, tipped over at Pleasant River bridge near the Bethel-Gilead town line Monday morning, blocking the road for four or five hours.

Keep Watch for the "Feverish Cold"

If you are "run down" or out of condition, if sluggish bowels have allowed poisonous impurities to accumulate in your system, you are very liable to suffer from "feverish" colds.

Dr. True's Elixir

Laxative Worm Expeller

will ward off or lessen these attacks by getting relief from constipation. Mrs. E. W. Stephan of 31 Kenberma Road, Dorchester, Mass., writes: — "It was recommended to me by a relative who had used it for years, and I in turn most sincerely recommend it, most of all for children, but also as a laxative for adults."

Successfully used for 81 years.

WEST BETHEL

Mrs. Clara Abbott has returned from a few weeks visit with friends in Norway.

Philip Stone and sister, Mrs. Elma Morrill, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Abbott.

Mrs. Estella Goodridge and granddaughter, Beverly Kneeland, were week end guests of Mrs. F. O. Robertson at Bethel.

Bisson's Transfer truck was tipped over on Pleasant River hill, which delayed traffic some hours Monday morning.

Friends of Mrs. Lena Shaw in this community extend their sympathy in her recent bereavement.

Miss Susie Grover is visiting her sister, Mrs. Carroll Abbott, and family.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Jan. 27. We have now an average of four feet of snow on the level, with drifts from six to ten feet in depth. In wind blown sections.

On Wednesday night, Jan. 23, we had one of the heaviest snow falls of the season, followed by more snow and a falling temperature, everywhere 24 below being reported.

Sunday at midnight. Just a few minutes past 12 o'clock, I have been the rounds, inspected the wood fires in three stoves and closed the furnace drafts in the basement. All is quiet. The house is warm. I opened the outside door and stepped out. The thermometer recorder 16 degrees below zero.

Monday morning, clear and warming up just a little. Our boys are sawing wood to keep the home fires burning.

Our representative to the State Legislature in Augusta, A. H. Russ, spent the week end in town.

The Willing Workers of South Woodstock were entertained at the home of Mrs. Olive Pingree Davis on Wednesday, Jan. 23. Your reporter regrets not being able to attend, but learns that the meeting was very interesting and greatly enjoyed.

G. W. Q. Perham and son Edwin, who were obliged to abandon their car less than a quarter of a mile from home the night of the big storm, Jan. 23, were not able to get the car home from where it was buried in a huge snow bank till late Saturday afternoon, Jan. 26. Abner Mann, another victim of the storm, did not arrive home till early Thursday morning, having abandoned his car somewhere near Bryant Pond and was not able to get it home till Friday.

Mrs. Jessie Andrews, who has been suffering from a severe attack of neuritis, is much better at this writing.

You can't stop Al Hendrickson from getting out, no matter what the storms or conditions of the weather. Four nice horses in front of a big truck loaded with logs were one of the sights of the snow storm. Motor power and horse power make a good combination, with Ray and Al as drivers.

On Saturday night Hendrickson's crowd attended the Carnival in Lewiston.

Sure, we have had plenty of snow and extreme cold weather, but never for an hour yet has South Woodstock been off the map. The State highway has been kept clear at all times throughout town. Andrewsville has had a clear way to Davis Corner and in no way has it been so we could not get to West Paris, but it has been a different story on other divisions of the town. Many places are still isolated. Perkins Valley was plowed out this Sunday afternoon. Carlin Hill is to be plowed tonight. The Perham road opened Saturday afternoon. The Felt valley road still blocked up. Chase school district road not opened at this writing (past R. C. Davis place). Many roads not actually needed to be opened will have to wait. The Perham school district road was opened Saturday afternoon to give a chance for week end supplies. The road through Whitman school district is partly opened.

New officers elected at the last meeting of the Willing Workers were: Jessie Andrews, president; Flossie Perham, vice-president; Lila Dean, secretary; Annie Davis, treasurer; Cora Perham, quilt comm.

BRYANT POND

Owing to sickness the Eastern Star installation has been postponed to Feb. 8.

Mrs. Howard J. Jukins, who has been ill, is gaining.

Mrs. Walter Ordway is sick with the grip.

Roy Noyes has the grip, but is better at this writing.

Miss Elizabeth Noyes has been spending a few days of her vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, at South Paris.

Miss Mona Twitchell is working for Mrs. Leslie Abbott.

EAST BETHEL

Owing to the storm and wind blow of Thursday and Friday the boys and girls from here who attend Gould Academy were unable to go to school.

The farmers here who sell produce in Rumford were obliged to go via Bethel and the other side of the river, as the Rumford snow plow broke down at the town line and has been there since Friday. No one can get by it.

Misses Grace and Nannette Foster and Mary Farwell have returned to Bryant Pond to resume their studies at Woodstock High School. Laurence Kimball of Middle Interyale carries the scholars from Jorgen Olson's and Lyman Winslow's to the school at Middle Interyale. Jorgen Olson has carried them during the fall and part of the winter terms.

Hank Olson, who has been cutting pulp for Ola Olson the past six weeks, has resumed his studies at Gould Academy.

William Hastings, Barbara, Billy and Virginia Hastings were in South Paris and Norway Saturday.

Robert Hastings is trucking birch to the mill at Bethel. Leslie Noyes is cutting birch for G. K. Hastings, & Sons.

Miss Gertrude Adamson, who passed away last Tuesday in Augusta was the youngest daughter of Virgil and Lillian Sargent Adamson. Her sister, Mrs. Grace Billings, died several years ago. She is survived by a half brother, Sumner Magill, and several nieces and nephews. On account of the storm the services were postponed until 4:30 Friday afternoon. Rev. P. J. Clifford officiated.

Mrs. G. L. Haines is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. James Swan, who has been gaining, is very low again.

Mrs. Norman Sanborn of Bethel spent Saturday visiting her brother, Ceylon Kimball, and family.

EAST BETHEL SCHOOL NEWS

The East Bethel Grammar School has been having a contest over A grade papers. The first prize went to Donald Holt, second to Robert Billings. There was a tie for third and this was awarded to both Natalie Foster and Albert Foster.

The following pupils have had 100 in Arithmetic for the week beginning Jan. 21: Grade I—William Hastings, Clare Tyler, Marilyn Noyes; Grade II—Junior Bartlett, Barbara Hastings, Julia Swan; Grade III—Gertrude Curtis, Deborah Farwell; Grade IV—Francis Holt, Ruth Swan; Grade VI—Natalie Foster, Malcolm Farwell; Grade VIII—Albert Foster, Donald Holt.

The following poem was written by Natalie Foster.

WIND

Wind in summer is cooling and still.
It sways the flowers on the hill.
Wind in the winter is very bold.
And sometimes it is very cold.

I have heard the wind sing a song.
It was good, but not very long.
And so, dear people, wait and see
And sometime you will agree with me.

MAINE HOUSEWIVES USE
NEW LAUNDRY PRACTICES

"Housewives in Maine are defy- ing the traditions of their pilgrim ancestors in regard to laundry practices," says Edna M. Cobb, home management specialist for the Extension Service, University of Maine.

"One hundred forty women have decided to banish 'Blue Monday' from their calendars by washing on Tuesday instead of Monday," Miss Cobb says. "They find that this system enables them on Monday to straighten up the house, do the marketing, and replace cooked foods which were consumed over the week end. Thus the equilibrium of the household is regained after having been generally upset by a strenuous week-end."

"Some representative groups of Maine farm women were asked what household tasks they most disliked doing. Laundry work, either washing or ironing or both, almost invariably stood near the top of the lists in the numerous answers. Some reasons given for disliking laundry work so much were 'it is too time consuming,' 'it is hard work,' 'the water is hard,' or 'I lack convenient equipment.'"

"These women and many of their neighbors have discussed their laundry problems at 75 or more meetings held in about half of Maine's counties during the last two years. A few women decided to have a separate room equipped for doing the laundry, but for most of them this was out of the question. More rearranged their laundry equipment with the purpose of saving a few steps by grouping to- gether equipment used in laundry work."

"Most of the changes that oc- curred were in the use of simple energy saving devices. Bending over to pick the clothes out of the basket requires four and one-half times as much energy as doing the same work standing. Ironing while sitting requires one-third as much energy as while standing."

NORTH WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. George Cushman have been entertaining relatives from Greene.

Mrs. Edgar Davis, Everett Cole, Mrs. Herman Cole and Doris Coffin were at Norway Monday evening. Millis Stahl of Bates College, Lewiston was a week end guest at Walter Russ.

Doris Coffin visited several days at South Woodstock last week.

Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Buck, was taken to Rum- ford Community Hospital late Sun- day afternoon and was operated on for appendicitis as soon as he got there.

Bernard Cushman is not very well and is not attending school. Marjorie and Ardella Fuller have the whooping cough.

Irvina Russ is working at Wal- ter Ordway's. Mrs. Ordway is sick. Mrs. James Knights visited her sister, Mrs. Frank Sweetser, one afternoon recently.

Easy Cure for Insomnia Is Just Stop Thinking

London.—A sure cure for insomnia is to stop thinking.

And to stop thinking, according to Lillian Mackinnon, a well-known British educationist, it only needs a little practice.

Mackinnon said:
"With practice one can learn to stop thinking altogether. The way to do it is to relax the muscles of the face, including the muscles of the eyes, and gradually all thought will drift away."

"You will have a feeling of delightful drowsiness and you will be able to fall asleep at will and at any time. This is a certain cure for insomnia."

The Word "Console"

The word "console" was taken from the French early in the eighteenth century, and with its original meaning, as a term in architecture. Its etymology is doubtful, possibly from the verb consolider, to consolidate. The term originally denoted a bracket or corbel either ornamental or for supporting a cornice or fixture. Toward the close of the nineteenth century, in organ building, the meaning was extended to denote the portion of the instrument containing the manuals and stops. The console table in which the table was supported wholly or in part by consoles, or whose legs had the appearance of consoles, originated in the early nineteenth century. But the meaning of the word console is entirely missing in its application of the modern gas-range.—Literary Digest.

The Grooming of Ants

Naturalists who have been studying the habits of certain ants have discovered that the insects go through most careful operations of cleaning themselves. Each ant performs this operation, not for herself, but for another. She acts for the time as lady's maid. She stands by washing the face of her companion and then goes over the whole body. The actions of the ant who is being washed show the utmost satisfaction. She lies down with all her limbs stretched loosely out, she rolls over on her side, even on her back, a perfect picture of ease. The pleasure the little insects show in being thus combed and washed is really an object lesson to many higher animals.—Montreal Herald.

Facts About Alaska

Alaska is about one-fifth the size of the United States, with federal reserve lands full of fine timber. The winter temperatures at Juneau are the same as at St. Louis, Mo. A great fishing industry is located there. Two thousand species of native flowers, moose, deer, caribou and brown bear are to be found by the hunters. Very interesting are the salmon canneries, the blue fox ranches and seal herds, while the scenery is nothing short of majestic.

They'll Soon be Men

by
Lawrence Hawthorne

There's nothing "cute" about them any more;
They've lost the cunning ways of baby days;
The dimples and the curls they onetime wore
No longer win for them such glowing praise—
Our boys are getting big and growing strong;
And, where they once were chubby, they are long!

Those gentle baby voices that we heard
Have taken on a deeper, harsher tone;
And, oftentimes, they use a phrase or word
That, in their tender years, was never known;
Where once we only taught them proper speech,
We find it necessary now to preach!

They freely contemplate a broader view;
Their longings and ambitions are proclaimed;
They often show determination, too,
In reaching an objective they have named;
No longer do they readily depend
Upon the aid or guidance we can lend.

The little ones that were our pride and joy
No longer do the tricks of baby days;
Each baby has become a husky boy,
And has adopted boyhood's normal ways.
I'd like to have our babies back again,
But I'll be mighty proud when they are men!

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Plate, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

According to the old saying, "The mills of the gods grind slowly—but they grind exceedingly fine."

That adage can be accurately applied to the present Congress, as it considers the President's new recovery and relief program. It is moving slowly, it is talking a good deal, and it is gradually grinding out legislation toward the two principal projects of the White House—social security, and an unprecedentedly vast public works program, designed to eliminate the dole.

The public works program is of the most immediate interest. It will cost $4,000,000,000—the largest draft ever drawn against the United States Treasury for any single purpose. It will put about 3,500,000 men to work directly. And, if the President's hopes materialize, it will put another 3,500,000 to work indirectly in jobs created by the spending power of the first 3,500,000.

Equally important are the promised principals upon which the program is predicated. All works is to be useful, in that it will either permanently improve living conditions or create new wealth. Pay for workers will be above the present "dole" level—but will be low enough so that the men employed will still keep an eye out for jobs in private business. Projects will be selected so as to use the largest possible amount of labor for the money spent. The money will be allocated on the basis of the greatest need—that is, a state which has 20% of its people on relief will get more than a state which has but 10% on relief. It is said the public works program will avoid competition with private enterprise, which is justifiably jittery about government activities in the industrial field.

The list of possible public works has not been completed, but a number are known. Public buildings will be one. Bridge building will be another. Soil conservation and sanitation will come in for their share, as will tunnels, flood dams and forest conservation. Road building will naturally be near the head of the list.

There was considerable dissatisfaction in Congress over the fact that the President wants the public works money under his control—Congressmen wanted to distribute it themselves. However, this idea seems to be definitely out—allocations of funds will be in the jurisdiction of the White House, through a board appointed by the President.

So far as the social security program is concerned, it is finding rather hard going. It seems that every Congressman has his own idea as to how the ill, the aged and the unemployed should be aided—there is much argument, many words and little agreement. By the time this is read, the so-called Townsend Plan, whereby every person over 60 would be given $200 a month by the government, will probably have been introduced in the lower house—proponents of the plan claim enough supporters to get it through. The President's influence, however, will be thrown aggressively against it, and in favor of a much more moderate policy.

-OO-

Business reports are encouraging. The country is experiencing gradual improvement in about every line of endeavor.

Trade, according to Dunn & Bradstreet, is rising above the levels of 1930 and 1931. Where, at the beginning of 1932, that company's business activity index stood at 50.1, it now touches 74—a gain of 45%. This increase is largely due to retail distribution gains, which are 5% above last year in New England, 8 to 12% up on the Pacific Coast, and 20 to 30% improved in the Middle West, with the balance of the country showing rises of from 12 to 15%. Reports from grain and livestock markets are also encouraging.

Steel production is at 44% of capacity—a gain over recent levels. It is still advancing. Electric power production shows some gains. The construction industry, long dormant, is showing signs of recovery, due principally to the activities of the Housing Administration which, after a slow start, seems to be gathering momentum in its drive to make people build and renovate their homes.

A recent Annalist statement, sent out over the financial wires, said, in effect, that all matters of interest to business are overshadowed by the possibilities inherent in the Supreme Court's forthcoming decision on the gold seizure act. It seems sure, however, that quick remedial action will be taken if the Court holds against the government—Congress is prepared for an adverse decision, and bills are already drafted in case it becomes necessary to revamp our money system.

537 teams of 4-H Club members in Maine gave public demonstrations on a variety of projects last year.

The MAINE MEETING PLACE by EARLE DOUCETTE

At least 185,889 residents of Maine, that being the number of hunters and fishermen here, will be keenly interested in the outcome of a bill soon to come up for legislative consideration which would increase the resident hunting and fishing licenses from 65c to $1.15 each.

Proponents of the bill claim that the additional money which would be obtained is urgently needed for conservation and propagational purposes if the State is to maintain its preeminence as a hunting and fishing region and at the same time undertake the work that will assure our boys and girls of the same outdoor advantages that we enjoy.

Those opposed, logically and understandably enough, are on that side of the fence because they have not, as yet, been convinced that the above is necessarily the case.

Let's analyze the situation as it stands.

First, it may be a good idea to compare our resident fees with those of other States, not because it will prove anything in particular, but just out of curiosity. Skipping from one part of the country to the other in order to get a cross-section of information, and taking the U. S. Department of Agriculture's bulletins as authority, we find that down in Florida the natives pay $3.25 for the right to fish, and $8.00 to hunt. In the other corner of the country, in Washington, the Washingtonians are forced to shell out $5.00 to fish and $7.50 to hunt, all of which makes hunting and fishing quite expensive. In Texas, the boys who are home on the range pay $2.00 per head when they want to hunt anything but little dogs—and so it goes. Even with the proposed increase, it is evident that our fees would still be among the lowest in the country.

But why, you may ask, is more money needed right now? Why, if we have traveled this far on the 65c license, can't we get the rest of the way?

The answer is simple. For years the Inland Fish and Game Commission has been struggling along on insufficient funds. By increasing the efficiency of the department to a point where it now leads the world in the economical production of game fish, the depletion of fish and game has been effectively checked.

Now, however, our hatcheries are running at top production. Hunters and fishermen are increasing in number by the thousands making it evident that more and more game fish will be needed as time goes on. The answer is more hatcheries, more game farms, or less fish and game in the future.

Fortunately we have a chance right now to get these new hatcheries. The Federal Government as a relief measure is ready and willing to build all the hatcheries and rearing pools that we can maintain. If we accept the offer, we will get something that we couldn't possibly get for years to come, and will have the facilities to produce all the fish that we will need in the future.

That increased fee will enable us to do this and to have some money left over for the imperative need of game propagation. That, then, is why the proponents say that we need the increased license; so that we can be assured of good hunting and fishing in the future.

The argument that I like best, however, is one given by a fellow I chanced to be talking with the other day when the subject of an increased license came up.

"Am I in favor of the license?" said, "You bet I am. Why? It happens that I have a son. I would kind of like to see him grow up. I would like to see him ahead and see where in the years they will enjoy the doors as I have done, the companionships; the rest and peace and the health that Maine find in following out and streams. I would like to see things as I found them; salmon trout in the lakes; deer and in the woods. It seems to me this is the birthright of our children, and I would hate to see that I had selfishly destroyed it. I would hate to see our fish and game withered thought to these youngsters. Is now, the handwriting is on the wall. In a year or two under present conditions, we will be more fish than we are putting in the future, so that your children mine can find the same happy in the out-of-doors that you have found."

And the only answer I can give of to that is—me, too, brother.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The Girl Scouts held a meeting at the Girl Scout Rooms on Feb. 25, with an attendance of 100. Each girl invited a boy partner. Many games were played, prizes given. Beano was one of the most important games. Fishing was another important game. A close everyone joined in singing.

The next meeting will be at the Girl Scout Rooms on Feb. 1, at 3:30 p. m.—Helen Scout Scribe.

Losers Put Up Game Fight—Card Scores 20 Points

Gould Academy put up a game fight last Friday against a big, heavy, Farmington team led by its six foot four inch center, Card, who scored 20 points. Bob Browne, Bill Wight and Paul Daniels starred for the losers and the local team carried the fight to the invaders in grand style during the first two periods. Gould led 9-8 at the quarter and with less than three minutes to play of the first half they were still out in front 15 to 13. At this point Browne was removed from the game due to an injury and Farmington took advantage of the change in lineup and scored ten points in two minutes to lead 23-15 at the half.

In the third and fourth periods the Farmington team began to function smoothly and soon gained a substantial lead. Their ability to get the tip-off was a big factor in their scoring as well as was their six foot four inch center, who could not be stopped from tipping in rebound shots under the basket.

The Guggenheim Foundation

The purpose of the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics may be broadly defined as follows: To promote aeronautical education, both academic and general; to assist in the extension of fundamental aeronautical science; to assist in the development of commercial aircraft and aircraft equipment; to further the application of aircraft in business, industry and other economic and social activities of the nation.

Each Island Different

Each island in the Hawaiian group is different. The Isle of Hawaii has luxuriant jungles of tree ferns and volcanic wastes. There are quaint native villages and ruins of ancient temples. Maui island is dominated by Haleakala, old volcanic crater, while Kauai, the one to the north, is characterized by its rainbow-colored canyons and great cliffs facing the windward coast.

Home of the Flamingos

Flamingos are natives of the mangrove swamps of Cuba and the islands in the Bahamas. Contrary to popular belief they are not migratory birds. They formerly were found in overwhelming numbers in Cuba and the Bahamas, but so many were killed for their beautiful plumage and because they are such tender food that they are rapidly becoming extinct.

BANKERS' STORY

American Bankers Association President Announces Move to Stimulate Bank Newspaper Advertising

NEW YORK.—Plans for stimulating wider use of informative newspaper advertising by banks in promoting public understanding and confidence in regard to existing banking conditions and methods have been announced by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, as a part of his organization's activities in aid of recovery.

A general groundwork was prepared through a nationwide survey of advertising by banks relative to their willingness to extend justifiable loans to industry and trade. This, he said, revealed that a large number in all parts of the country are pursuing aggressive policies along this line and encouraging their customers to develop forward-looking business plans. "It is our aim to aid in fostering this constructive attitude wherever possible," he said.

The association's Advertising Department, under the direct supervision of the general executive officers, has prepared, at the headquarters in New York City, an informative advertising series for the use of member banks in the association to aid them in developing in their own communities better general public understanding regarding banking, Mr. Hecht said.

The Theme of New Advertising

"The underlying theme of this advertising is that sound banking is based on helpful human relations and that it has a unity of interest with the people of its community which binds them together with a common purpose," he said.

"We are confident that if a clear understanding of this is brought home to the people in all our banking communities, it will go far in restoring the public confidence which good banking deserves. A bank in which people do not believe is doubly safe. It is to the public interest for the people to have confidence in their banks."

"We feel that bank advertising has a special public duty to perform in this connection under existing conditions. The copy which will be supplied in the service we have developed will not only aid the individual bank in promoting the use of its own facilities but is also aimed to bring about with the aid of newspaper advertising a clearer public viewpoint regarding its essential place in the life of its community."

Mr. Hecht emphasized in regard to the new advertising facilities being offered to the members of the association that they are not a profit making venture and that there is no intention to disturb existing advertising arrangements, the idea being that these institutional services shall supplement rather than replace present plans, or that they will give assistance to member banks lacking satisfactory arrangements.

Pharmacist Is Responsible

A pharmacist is obliged to know the safe and proper dose of every drug and be responsible for every prescription that he fills, writes Vera Hickey, New York city, in Collier's Weekly. Therefore he can be held liable for filling a prescription as it is written when, through an error, it calls for an improper dose.

NATIONAL SAVINGS
MARK INCREASES

NEW YORK.—The annual savings compilation of the American Bankers Association for the year ending June 30, 1934, shows that for the first time since 1930 total savings in all American banks recorded an annual increase.

A statement by W. Espey Albright, Deputy Manager of the association in charge of its Savings Division, in the organization's monthly magazine "Banking," says that savings deposited in banks as of June 30, 1934, gained 3.5 per cent as compared with a year earlier.

"The aggregate is an increase over last year of $742,132,000, the first since the year which closed June 30, 1930," he says. "This is a notable achievement, for the decline since 1930 had been precipitate and all-embracing. In that year savings had reached the all-time high of $23,478,631,000. A year ago the amount was $21,125,534,000, a loss in three years of $7,353,097,000. This year the figure stands at $21,867,666,000."

"Depositors, too, have gained in number, going from 29,262,442 on June 30, 1933, to 29,562,174 on June 30 this year, a gain of 299,732. Four years ago there were 52,729,432 depositors, or one depositor for each 2.3 persons in the country. Now there is one account for each . . . persons."

The middle of the long refectory was banked with red roses; the supper was as varied and delectable as a noted caterer knew how to serve it. The guests' eyes were wide with admiration, their cheeks pink with repletion. Perched on one of the wide window sills, Prudence pretended to eat.

"How is the lumbering coming, Prue?"

"It's a cinch. The two men who were sent to Calloway slunk back and asked for a job. We took one, and the crew rode Kuskiko out of town."

"Why?"

"He dumped the truck of liquor."

"I suppose he was doing the dirt-work for some one higher up."

"Of course—but he tried to knife me. That gets you, doesn't it? I'll drink this punch. It will give your color back. Don't care for old Rod, do you?"

"Who are you to try to probe the secrets of a maiden's heart?" Her eyes lost their laughter. "How is Rodney?"

"Better. He has made public confession that he was solely responsible for dumping that load of liquor in front of the cattle barn."

"That he will pay the bills. He'll get even with Rod. When found out that he was wrong—"

"He is such a just man," Prudence interpolated crisply.

"He is doing his darndest to be a man now. He diverted the girder which would have finished Rod. I turned away and didn't see it going."

Prudence shivered. "That's the worst of the horrors of that lurid tale. Oh, let's not think of it. I'll get the Puffins. They probably want to go home."

Prudence came down the stairs in her green velvet dress with its broad mink collar, and Gerard was waiting.

"Going? My party has been a knockout, hasn't it?" The blue of her eyes was black, a hint of passion underlay the laughter in his voice.

"I don't like to talk about my party," Prue flouted gaily. If her heart would stop thumping she wished wildly. "You have mortitized yourself. Good-night."

He could feel the throb of his fingertips as he held the hand she freed.

"Are you sure Si is waiting?"

"I will leave you and speed other guests."

"He didn't say good-night!" Prue told herself over and over, she squeezed in beside Mrs. Fox on the back seat of the automobile.

Foolish for your brother to drive alone," Si protested, as he entered the car. "What a mean is, might have come along with us."

"Perhaps there wouldn't be any. I'm always forgetful," Mother said. "You're not so slim as you were in the days when you and I went to the circus."

The circus! That reminds me, it happened to Milly Gooch?" Prudence inquired.

"She drew a long, troubled breath. "She went to pieces the night of the fire, dearie. She had her arms hanging on to Roddy Gerard, guess if folks hadn't been so close to death thinking where flames might go there would have been some whispering."

"I wouldn't have tasted, Mother. Calloway's confession brought back the whole story of how Roddy'd seduced her. Wait Gerard had better set his foot in the village or he'd be tarred and feathered, here we are at your door, Miss Prue."

Prudence lingered outside the red door. Moonlight silvered the snow. How low the stars seemed! They were like gold dust spangling velvet.

Prudence was standing before the door when she entered the living room. He smiled as he met her eyes. Thank heaven, he could smile. "I'll call this a day," he said. "It is so long since I have stepped out to an evening festivity that I am tired."

"Oh, I thought we would talk it over before the fire, David. That's half the fun of a party." She slipped her hand under his arm and laid her cheek against his sleeve. "Of course you are tired, dear. Go to bed. I will lock up."

"I want to be full of pep tomorrow. Gerard is having a big tree for the crew at the bunk-house, sort of a house warming." His arms tightened about her shoulders. "No matter how dark and problem-lagged the path, Prue, you bring life and gaiety and courage in your train."

"Why, Dave! Dave!"

Prudence hid her quivering lips against his shoulder. His praise brought her heart to her throat. He laid his hand tenderly on her ruddy hair.

"Didn't expect your staid old brother to go sentimental, did you?" He laughed. "Well, that's my story and I stick to it. You're stunning in that frock, Prue. Good-night, dear."

"Good-night, good-night, beloved," she hummed in a husky undertone as she watched him cross the room.

She started to bank the fire, threw on a log instead. She was wide awake, she couldn't sleep if she went to bed. She curled up in the wing chair. Why hadn't Rodney said good-night? Perhaps just as she had discovered that she adored him, he didn't like her any more. Why should he? She had been bitter and hateful. Now that love for him had slipped into her heart and taken absolute possession, it had given life a new value, given her a new insight into her own needs and shortcomings.

A vine outside tapped icy fingers against a window. A shutter rattled eerily. The fire purred. Her thoughts raced on and on. The banjo clock wheezed and ponderously struck the hour.

Prudence counted. Midnight. How still the world was! What would old Santa say if he caught her sitting up for him? Silly, what a kid she was! Perhaps that was the reason Rodney didn't like her any more—he—Someone was watching her! Who had come in? She glanced furtively at the long mirror. Her heart stopped. Rodney!

He didn't move. Was he real? Her fascinated eyes clung to his in the mirror. How he had changed since the day she had plunged into his arms in the barn! Determination and the will to grapple obstacles had remodeled his mouth; where it had been sensitive and mobile, it now set in a grim line. She had thought it too boyish. Now its sternness was like a knife in her heart; she didn't want life to hurt him; she couldn't bear it. Was she partly responsible? What would his mother think of the change if she knew? He moved, and the spell was broken.

"Merry Christmas, Prue of Prosperity farm!"

She stood up and caught at the back of the wing chair. The guarded ardor of his eyes took her breath; his mouth was no longer stern, it was young again.

"Merry Christmas, Rodney."

"Don't look at the clock. This isn't late for the night, before Christmas. Had to get the collar for the kitten I've left him in a basket in the hall. Planned to put him in Jean's stocking in the morning. Dave okayed my coming."

Was that why her brother had been too tired to stay downstairs? The light in the eyes watching her seemed to get in the way of her breath. She proposed eagerly: "Come into the shop. The collar is ready. I—thought perhaps you had forgotten it."

"Oh, yes?" he responded enigmatically, and followed her with the rustling basket in his hand. Prudence picked up the collar from the bench.

"Take the kitten out and hold him tight while I put it on. There! Do you like it?"

"It's great!" With the squirming kitten clutched in one arm, Rodney seized her hand and held it against his lips.

"Darling, did you think I would go through this night without a showdown with you? I kept away after that dance. I didn't dare trust myself. Why did you tell me you were engaged to Jim Armstrong? Why—"

The kitten squirmed and clawed and jumped. He sprang to the back of a chair. Contracted to a black ball. With a bound landed on the high top of the bookcase. His green eyes turned ruby red as he peered over the edge. The man and girl stared back at him.

"Darn! Stop laughing, Rodney. Gerard, you'll wake Dave and bring Jane Mack down on the double-quick for another burglar," Prudence warned in a hoarse whisper.

"Get that cane in the corner and poke the kitten down. The black imp! Perhaps you can reach him if you stand on something."

Gerard balanced precariously on the arm of a chair and poked vigorously. At each thrust the quarry retreated. At the imminent risk of breaking his neck—if not the kitten's—Gerard lunged with the cane.

"What the dickens is going on here?" David Schuyler demanded from the threshold, as he knotted the cord of his broadcled dressing gown. Jane Mack, still in her glittering black frock, peered over his shoulder. Gerard jumped to the floor.

"That snooty kitten walked out on us."

"Oh, was that it? Macky and I thought you had cornered her burglar at last."

Jane Mack twisted gnarled hands.

"I was the real burglar, Prue," said Rodney. "I had asked Miss Mack to get the emerald and diamonds for me because—"

Jane Mack eagerly interrupted him. "Mr. Rodney didn't want you to know he had them. I sneaked 'em from the safe that morning you caught us three coming out of this room. Mr. David knew about it. Every time you took out those packages I nearly lost my mind for fear you would miss the emerald. Finally I couldn't stand the strain any longer, so I just worked up that yell and burglar story, to account for them not being there."

David Schuyler slipped his hand under Jane Mack's arm. "Come on, they don't need us, Macky. Gerard is the only one who can explain."

He looked back and smiled as he crossed the threshold. Prue waited till the voices on the stairs were still, before she asked:

"Why did you want those stones?"

Rodney Gerard held out his hand. On the palm glittered a ruby. "Grandmother's emerald! Set in my design! What marvelous baubles! Why did you do it?"

"Is it splashy enough? You said you wanted the stones set, didn't you,—Gorgeous? I would like all my life to give you what you want. You know I love you, don't you? You know that I've been mad about you from the moment I held you in my arms in the barn. Why did you tell me you were engaged to Jim?"

He dropped the ring to the bench and caught her shoulders. "Don't turn away. We'll fight it out if I stay here all night. Answer my question."

"I didn't want to love you."

"Why—because of Milly Gooch?" Calloway told me that he had poisoned your mind against me. There was not a shred of truth—"

"Please—please don't tell me that. I know it. In my heart I have always known it."

The whiteness of his face frightened her. His ardent eyes confused her. She touched the ring.

"Now that the emerald is set, what are you going to do with it?"

Color rushed back into his face, youth and gaiety and laughter to his lips.

"Watch me, Gorgeous, just watch me while I make my wish come true!"

He caught her left hand and slipped the ring on the third finger.

"All right with you? This means marriage, you know—for always."

"For always," she whispered.

He looked at her without speaking. His eyes seemed to draw her heart from her breast. She pressed her cheek against the gardenia on his coat, and challenged with unsteady gaiety:

"Something tells me that you are letting that silly promise—"

He crushed her so close in his arms that she had barely breath left to add:

"Don't you usually kiss a lady when you ask her to marry you? Perhaps, though, it isn't being done—perhaps—Rod!"

The quickly smothered cry, half laugh, half sob, roused the dozing kitten. He peered over the top of the bookcase. Yawned. Sneeled. Mewed indignantly. As neither girl nor man looked up, he jumped to the high back of a chair. Always with watchful green eyes on the two humans by the bench, the amber pendant on the silver collar glowing, he proceeded to remove the dust from his sleek black paws.

The Ring-Tailed Cat

The beautiful little mammal, the Bassaris, commonly known as the ring-tailed cat, is a cousin of the raccoon, according to a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Bassaris has a habit of many unusual names; such as, the "coon-cat," the "band-tailed cat," the "raccoon-fox," the "raccoon-squirrel" of Lower California. But inasmuch as this little creature seems to possess the face and ears of a fox, the eyes of a lemur, the paws of a cat, the body of a pine marten, and the tail of a raccoon with its seven black rings, the Bassaris might be called anything.

The airplane hangar at Presque Isle, leased by the Cymric Aircraft Co., Bangor, was destroyed by fire Jan. 30. Four planes were in the hangar. One was burned.

Maine has more aircraft this year than last, but the number of licensed pilots in the State has decreased. The aircraft have increased from 60 to 61 and the licensed pilots have dropped from 57 to 54.

Damage of $1,000 was caused when fire destroyed a part of the FERA road construction camps at Houlton Wednesday. Fire apparatus summoned from Rumford was unable to reach there on account of drifted roads.

Bowdoin College has received a gift of $20,000. The gift is from Mrs. Elizabeth Washburn of Minneapolis, Minn., in memory of her father, Rev. Henry Fiske Harding, Bowdoin 1850, and college overseer for 47 years.

TRUCK IMPROVEMENTS FOR 1935

STUDY the list of 1935 Ford V-8 Truck improvements at the right. Then remember that Ford—and only Ford—gives you the 80-horsepower V-8 engine, with its 4-cylinder economy. Remember that Ford gives you the reliable full-floating rear axle. Remember that the copper-lead connecting rod bearings that resist burning out are a Ford development.

No other truck, regardless of price, matches the combination of features offered by the Ford V-8. And nowhere, except with Ford, can you get the Engine Exchange Plan—which gives you a block-tested, factory-reconditioned engine for less money, and in less time, than an ordinary overhaul.

Examine this new 1935 Ford V-8 Truck at your local Ford dealer's today. Test it on your own job... 13 1/4 or 157 inch wheelbase; bodies for almost every use.

Forward to Distributor

Obtained by mounting front springs ahead of axle and moving V-8 engine forward. This places more load ahead of rear axle, more weight on front end.

FORWARD LOAD DISTRIBUTION

... More uniform tire and brake wear. Better brake action. Tends to improve operation throughout. With more room between cab and rear axle, you can make acute angle turns with full-width semi-trailer.

NEW QUICK-STOPPING, RIB-COOLED BRAKES... Drums of alloy iron, with integrally cast cooling ribs. Will not "fade" after a series of fast stops. Fewer adjustments.

NEW HEAVY-DUTY TRUCK CLUTCH... Centrifugal force increases plate pressure as engine speed increases. Resists slippage. Lower pedal pressure required at idling speeds. Longer life.

NEW HIGH-EFFICIENCY COOLING SYSTEM... Radiator cooling area increased 15%.

NEW COUPE-TYPE CAB... Safety glass all around. Clear-vision ventilation. Easy-opening windshield. Large, screened cowl ventilator. Seat adjustable with tilting back.
